

Seven Steps To Becoming An Inspirational Leader

Prepared by The Sewells Team

1

You have to work at it

Leaders are made not born, so it will take both time and effort to develop into an inspirational leader and improve performance

Be team orientated

Good leaders realise they can't do everything themselves. They need to be able to delegate effectively and seek advice from others to help them to continually improve results

Your people are your greatest asset

Good leaders will recognise this and will show their people they are valued and give them recognition. Creating more positive and happier staff is the key to achieving greater productivity and profitability

4

Set a vision and inspire others to achieve it

A good leader will give their team a clear direction and will inspire them to follow it. They encourage their people to take ownership of this vision and do whatever it takes to turn it into a reality

They are leaders not bosses

There is a big difference between the boss (who says, “Get going”) and the leader (who says, “Let’s go”). They know the leadership behaviours and employ them more often

6

Lead by example

Good “leadership” creates brilliant “followership”. To do this, and to encourage winning behaviours, leaders practice winning behaviours themselves and are role models to others

7

Create a positive environment

To succeed, good leaders will create a positive environment and will surround themselves with positive people, who energise the team and energise the business

Every organisation needs to develop leaders to become more inspirational in order to create the performance breakthroughs they need
